

First Response Emergency Care (FREC) Level 3

Excellence In Security

Latest training equipment

Realistic security scenarios

Cannulation & trauma training

The purpose of 3rg's First Response Emergency Care (FREC) qualification is to provide immediate life support whilst working within the Close Protection or Maritime Security sector.

3rg are one of the few companies who employ our own qualified paramedic to teach the FREC course, which ensures continuity in all our medical training

The course is approved by QUALSAFE.

Tel: 0330 223 1776

Email: training@3rg.co.uk

Web: www.3rg.co.uk

First Response Emergency Care (FREC) Level 3

Who should attend?

3rg's First Response Emergency Care (FREC) Qualsafe qualification is particularly focused to support people working or looking to work in the private security industry. Personnel aiming to find employment in the Close Protection or Maritime Security role will be expected to have a good level of recognised medical training.

Outcomes

Students will gain a well-respected industry qualification and a good working knowledge of initial clinical assessment, trauma management and treatment of a range of medical emergencies.

Course content

- The pre-Hospital Environment (including minimising the risk of infection)
- Patient Assessment
- Respiration and Airway Management
- Circulation and Shock
- Basic Life Support and Automated External Defibrillation
- Extended Trauma Related training to suit the security industry.
- Medical Emergencies

Assessment

The course has a mixture of examinations and practical assessments. The qualifications are valid for of 3 years and periodic re-training is suggested in order to keep skills up to date.

Requirements

There is no requirement to have previous medical qualifications to undertake First Response Emergency care (FREC) Level 3 course.

Course Duration: 5 Days

Cost: £750.00 inc VAT

Tel: 0330 223 1776

Email: training@3rg.co.uk

Web: www.3rg.co.uk

